GAZETTE NOTICE NO. 2373

THE INDUSTRIAL COURT OF KENYA

CAUSE NO. 41 OF 2008

KENYA PLANTATION AND AGRICULTURAL WORKERS
UNION—(Claimant)

VERSUS

OSERIAN DEVELOPMENT COMPANY LIMITED—(Respondent)

Issue in Dispute:

Summary dismissal of:

Thomas Nyakundi
Dismas Onyatidi
Joseph Khamadi
Samuel Kiriga
Betty Muraya
Gabriel Wasike
Morris Wafula

The Kenya Plantation and Agricultural Workers Union represented by Mr. Issa Wafula, shall hereinafter be referred to as “the Claimant”, and Messrs. Oserian Development Company Limited represented by Mrs. M. Onyango shall hereinafter be referred to as “the Respondent”.

The parties were heard in Court at Nairobi on 19th November, 2008, 21st and 22nd January 2009. They relied on their written memoranda and their representatives made oral submissions.

AWARD

This dispute was referred to the Court by the Minister for Labour and Human Resource Development under powers conferred to him by the provisions of section 8 of Trade Disputes Act, hereinafter referred to as the repealed Act. The letter of reference together with the requisite statutory certificates being Forms G and H issued by the Labour Commissioner and the Minister for Labour were received by the court on 26th June, 2008. The dispute came up for mention in court on 10th July when directions on filing of memoranda and on hearing date were given.

The Claimant filed the Memorandum of Claim on the 25th July, while the Respondent filed the Memorandum of Reply on the 26th August.

According to the Memorandum of Claim, the Claimant has prayed for unconditional reinstatement of the seven (7) grievants. It is averred that the above mentioned grievants were employed by the Respondent on divers dates between 1992 and 2006 in various sections and different capacities. It is averred that they were summarily dismissed on 31st January, 2006. The Claimant contends that the grievants were dismissed wrongfully in that they were trade union representatives, and that they were not given a chance to defend themselves prior to the dismissal. It is alleged further that they were dismissed for intervening in a situation where the Employer/Respondent sought to compel other workers to board an open lorry for fire fighting exercise and that this was wrongful since the High court had outlawed open lorries being used to carry passengers and further that fire fighting is a risky undertaking which should only be done by professionally qualified workers.

According to the Claimant this dispute was reported to the Minister for Labour who in turn appointed an investigator. A report containing the findings and recommendation of the Minister has been availed to the court as Appendix 10 of the Memorandum of Claim. It was a finding of the investigation that the summary dismissal of the grievants was no longer an issue since the parties had met sometime before reporting the dispute and had agreed that the summary dismissal of the seven (7) grievants be reduced to normal termination. It was a recommendation of the Minister that the seven (7) grievants be paid full compensation for having lost their employment wrongfully.

The Respondent in the Memorandum has opposed the prayer for unconditional reinstatement. It is contended for the Respondent that the dismissals were justified because the grievants had incited the other employees to engage in various strikes, the last of which took place on 30th January, 2006 and had made the employer incur loss and damage. It was further averred that the grievants while inciting and organizing the strikes and especially of 30th January, 2006 had absented themselves from their employment without the permission of the employer. It was contended that the grievants had committed gross misconduct and that the employer was entitled to summarily dismiss them. It was further argued that the parties had met after the dismissals and had agreed to reduce the dismissals to normal termination and that reporting this dispute to the Minister and to the court was in bad faith and amounts to abuse of the processes of industrial relations. It is also contended that the investigation by the Minister for Labour had recommended that this dispute be settled by way of reducing the dismissals to normal termination and payment of maximum compensation. However, the Respondent urged the court to dismiss the case in entirety.

During the hearing of the dispute the representatives of the parties repeated and reiterated the contents of their written memoranda. The representative of the Claimant at one time contended that the terms of the agreement to reduce the summary dismissals to normal termination was not honoured by the Respondent. It also rejected the recommendation because it did not recommend reinstatement. The representative of the Respondent insisted that the Claimant rushed to report the dispute to the Minister without waiting for implementation of the agreement.

The Court has carefully considered the written memoranda, the appendixes annexed thereto and the oral submissions. It is not in dispute that the grievants were employed by the Respondent and that they were summarily dismissed. It is not in dispute also that the dispute was investigated and there was a finding that the grievants had been workers representatives and were summarily dismissed when acting as such. The Court agrees with the observation of the Minister that the dismissals violated the spirit of ILO convention No. 135 which prohibit dismissal of workers representatives. It is also observed that the grievants were not notified of the alleged acts of gross misconduct as required by the provisions of section 17 of the Employment Act, Cap 226, now repealed but which was applicable. There is a cardinal rule of natural justice which requires that no person shall be condemned unheard. There is no evidence that the Employer/Respondent ever gave the grievants an opportunity to defend themselves before the dismissal. The Court therefore concludes that the summary dismissal was wrongful.

The recommendation of the Ministers investigation has been considered. The provisions of section 7(4) of the Trade Disputes Act stipulates that an investigator may propose mode of settling a dispute. The proceedings before the investigator as appear in the report contained in appendix 10 of the Memorandum of Claim shows that both parties made oral submissions and that the investigator considered all sides prior to formulating the proposal (recommendation) of settling the dispute. The findings are exhaustive, but the alleged agreement to reduce the dismissals to normal termination was not availed to the Court and its terms and conditions could not be considered by the Court.

Upon careful consideration of all the circumstances of this dispute including the written memoranda and appendices annexed thereto and the oral submission it is hereby declared that the summary dismissals of the grievants by the Respondent were wrongful in that the grievants were representatives of the workers and were summarily dismissed while discharging their duties as such representatives. There is also no evidence that the Employer/Respondent accorded the grievants an opportunity of hearing the allegations of gross misconduct made against them and of defending themselves against such allegations. This was denial of a cardinal rule of natural justice which requires that no one should be condemned unheard.

The Court has considered that the grievants lost their employment wrongfully. This was also the finding of the investigator by the Minister for Labour. The remedy of reinstatement is the most appropriate in this situation. The right to join and be members of trade unions should be buttressed by protection of the right of representatives to discharge their duties without fear or favour. The Employer/Respondent is hereby ordered to unconditionally reinstate the grievant employees forthwith and pay them all their salaries and other benefits from time of dismissal up to the time of reinstatement.

Judge.
