UNESCO VACANCY

SPECIAL FUND APPOINTMENT

1. Title of post.—Expert in Machine Design (Plant Layout).

2. Location.—Mechanical Engineering Research and Development Organisation (MERADO), Durgapur, India.

3. Background.—With aid from the United Nations Development Programme, the Central Mechanical Engineering Research Institute (CMERI) was established in 1958 at Durgapur, about 150 km north-west of Calcutta. CMERI's task is the development of mechanical collaborative efforts with industry involving design of new products, product improvement, solution of production problems, and in general the rendering of service delineated by the Institution's name. Other supporting activities have naturally evolved in the fields of evaluation methods for engineering products and materials and basic supporting research. Achievements of the Institute to date include designs for cable-making machinery, a 20 hp. tractor, quick ice-making machinery, economical steel structural forms, a small moped and a scooter.

Recognising the success of CMERI, the Government and Unesco/UNDP have agreed to a co-operative effort to extend its services, both geographically and in their scope. Thus the Mechanical Engineering Research and Development Organization has been established with headquarters in Durgapur and three extension centres at Poona (near Bombay), Ludhiana (north of Delhi) and Madras. These centres are in operation with small staffs in quarters recently completed for the purpose. The MERADO centres will serve the primary purpose of giving advice and service to local industry on their day-to-day problems. They will also serve as regional outlets for CMERI, referring to the Institute for major and applied and basic problems requiring facilities and skills not available at the local MERADO. When fully established, these centres will fulfill the function of identifying problems of design, co-ordination, standardisation of locally produced components, material testing and processing, drawing up recommended specifications, adapting international codes and running appropriate training courses.

The Durgapur location, as above mentioned, serves as headquarters for all the MERADO centres, which are responsible through a deputy to the Director of CMERI. The Durgapur, MERADO, for purposes of the UNDP assistance, is designated as the Welding Engineering Division of CMERI. Certain aid is also provided, but as a secondary effort, to the other areas of competence of CMERI.

4. Functions.—The principal duties of the expert will be as follows:

(a) under the supervision of the Chief Technical Adviser and in close co-operation with his Indian counterparts, to provide technical assistance and guidance to research and development projects of MERADO in Machine Design (Plant Layout), in establishing and strengthening contacts with industries in the area, participate in collaborative and sponsored projects in Machine Design (Plant Layout);

(b) in collaboration with his Indian counterparts, to provide assistance to MERADO in requisitioning of equipment, its installation and utilisation and in training of the staff;

(c) to act as an expert in Machine Design (Plant Layout) for the whole project and assist the Chief Technical Adviser in his duties. To provide necessary assistance to MERADO Centres on the instructions of the Chief Technical Adviser.

5. Qualifications.—The expert should have a university degree and experience in research and development work in industry. He should be specialised in the field of Machine Design (Plant Layout) familiar with all aspects of Machine Design, Methods of Production, Plant Layout, etc.

6. Language qualifications.—English.

7. Duration of appointment.—18 months starting July 1971.

8. International salary and allowances.—(Net of national income tax—payable partly in the currency of the staff member's home or of the duty station).

Base salary per annum:
equivalent to	Gross:	$19,120
	Net:	$14,228
Post adjustment (cost of living, subject to change without notice) at this date: the local equivalent of		$612

Government Notice No. 238

SPECIAL FUND APPOINTMENT

1. Title of post.—Communication Psychology and Research Training Expert.

2. Location.—Film and Television Institute of India, Poona.

3. Background.—The Government of India has taken the decision to expand television throughout the country on a progressive and systematic basis. The primary function of the medium will be to assist and support national unity, education, economic and social development. In order to provide for the necessary skilled personnel to man the television systems, a Special Fund project has been established to assist in the development and operation of a television training centre, integrated with the existing Film Institute of India—now designated as the Film and Television Institute. An international staff of seven will be selected to train and advise Indian counterpart personnel during the three-year period of the project. Fellowships will permit external experience and training for key Indian staff.

As an integral part of the training programme for television production staff within the Institute, it is important that trainees have the opportunity of trying-out and evaluating their productions with a variety of audiences especially with adult education audiences in the rural villages. Students' evaluation of their productions should as far as possible be based upon the scientific methods of communication research. In order that producers may develop an empathy towards a variety of audiences, it is also important that they should have some understanding of the basis of the sociology of communication and social effectiveness of television. Thus the project includes equipment (a research vehicle) for the purpose of communication experimentation and the evaluation of trainees' experimental production.

4. Functions.—Under the general supervision of the Chief Technical Adviser and in co-operation with a counterpart appointed by the Government of India, the expert in Communication Psychology and Research Training will have as his principal responsibilities the following tasks:

(a) to train staff in the methods and techniques of audience research and "feedback" systems for educational television;

(b) To train students in the psychology of communication and research methodology as applied to evaluation of television programmes for educational purposes ;

(c) To initiate, organize and carry out experimental research programmes concerning the differential use of television information by a variety of rural audiences and the relative effectiveness of various programme styles in community adult education concepts, e.g. agriculture, family planning, health, community development, etc. to rural audiences.

5. Qualifications :

(a) University degree in one of the social sciences with post graduate qualifications in communication research ;

(b) Experience in communication research in developing countries with special reference to television in adult education would be an advantage ;

(c) Experience in teaching communication subjects.

Duties.—The meteorologist will be a member of the WMO team of four experts in the Special Fund project "Development and Improvement of Meteorological and Hydrological Services". Under the general supervision of the Project Manager he will be responsible for the planning and execution of the meteorological programme of the project, a short description of which is given in the Annex. His specific duties will be to :

(a) advise the counterpart authorities on the selection of sites for making meteorological observations ;

(b) supervise and assist with the installation of meteorological stations and instruments ;

(c) establish methods of processing of meteorological data for various purposes as well as for their publication ;

(d) train local personnel in the methods of meteorological observations, maintenance of the instruments and processing of data.

Qualifications.—The expert should have a university degree or equivalent in meteorology, mathematics or physics, with several years' experience in the establishment and improvement of the network of meteorological stations of different types including practical work on meteorological instruments and methods of observation. He should be familiar with the methods of collecting and processing of meteorological data and their publication.

Languages.—A good knowledge of Spanish is essential.

Salary level.—Basic salary equivalent of US $11,682 per annum, plus allowances (net of national tax).

Allowances :

1. Post adjustment.—This adjustment is variable according to cost of living at the duty station ; at present, for La Paz, equivalent of US $680 per annum for an expert without dependants and equivalent of US $1,020 per annum for an expert with dependants.

2. Assignment allowance.—Single, equivalent of US $950 per annum ; with dependants, equivalent of US $1,200 per annum.

3. Dependency allowance.—Equivalent of US $400 per annum for a dependent wife. Equivalent of US $300 per annum for each dependent child.

4. Education grant.—A grant up to a maximum of the equivalent of US $1,000 per annum is payable, under certain conditions, in respect of each dependent child in full time attendance at a school or university.

Note.—Other benefits subject to specific terms of appointment; pension fund; annual, home and sick leave. Also appointment and repatriation travel, transport of personal and household goods, installation allowance and repatriation benefits, home leave travel with eligible dependants under certain conditions.

Method of applications.—Applications should be made on UN or WMO personal history forms and should be addressed to the Secretary-General, World Meteorological Organization, Case postale No. 1, CH-1211 Geneva, 20 (Switzerland). Applications by cable will also be considered.

Closing date.—Applications should reach the Secretariat not later than 15th March, 1971.

ANNEX TO BOL/WMO.SF/2 Rev. 1

DEVELOPMENT AND IMPROVEMENT OF METEOROLOGICAL AND HYDROLOGICAL SERVICES IN BOLIVIA

The purpose of the project is to assist the Government in its meteorological and hydrological observation networks and in the establishment of an adequate central service to assemble, process and disseminate the information thus obtained.

Reliable meteorological and hydrological information is essential for the development of many important projects and activities in Bolivia in sectors influenced by climate and water resources such as agriculture, hydro-electric power production, transportation and colonization. Sufficient information cannot be provided by the existing systems which include only 35 synoptic, 92 thermopluvial, 347 pluviometric and one radio sounding station in the meteorological network and only 63 inadequately installed hydrological stations. In addition, all these stations are grouped in small areas, leaving entire regions practically without observations; moreover, they are managed by different ministries and organizations.

The Government, as a first step to improve this situation, has officially established the Meteorological and Hydrological National Service as a centralized organization with authority for technical and administrative matters in the entire country and for establishing relations with foreign specialized organizations. A plan for extending and improving these services has been formulated by the Bolivian Development Corporation and the Ministry of Planning and the Government requested assistance from the UNDP (Special Fund) for carrying out this plan.

The project activities will cover the initial stage of a programme for the development of the meteorological and hydrological services, from which the following benefits are expected:

(a) To provide data and information on climate conditions and hydraulic resources in certain regions of the country in which there are no systematic observations;

(b) To improve and extend the meteorological and hydrological information in those areas of the country where some data have already been obtained;

(c) To build up, initially, the network in the Upper Amazon River Basin, which is required for proposed development programmes in that region;

(d) To provide the Government agencies, private enterprises and individuals with the information needed for agricultural transportation and other current activities including all land and water resources development projects;

(e) To allow the Government to participate, with reliable data and information, in the international enterprises for the development of the Amazon and La Plata River Basins and to provide meaningful co-operation with the objectives of the International hydrological Decade programmes.

During the course of the project, staff will be trained in modern methods of data collection and processing, and in the operation and maintenance of the new installations. Training of professional staff for the new Service will be carried out by fellowships abroad and by in-service training by the international experts.

The ultimate aim of the project is to provide Bolivia with adequate meteorological and hydrological data for the planning of future economic development projects particularly the development of water resources and hydroelectricity.

The Special Fund through the Executing Agency (World Meteorological Organization) will provide a Project Manager and three other experts (total of 7½ man-years), 11 fellowships of a total of thirteen man-years, and equipment to the value of US $348,200.

Depending upon the result achieved at the end of the project a second stage of the project will be considered.
