Government Notice No. 1128

UNIVERSITY OF IFE
FACULTY OF HEALTH SCIENCESDIVISION OF HUMAN BIOLOGY AND BEHAVIOUR

HISTORICAL BACKGROUND

The Faculty of Health Sciences was formally instituted in the University of Ife in 1970 after three years of careful planning and upon the demand of the Government of the Western State in 1967 that a Medical School be created in the State.

Foundation students were actually admitted into the Faculty in September 1972, though a group of prospective health sciences students had been admitted for the University Preliminary Course in the Faculty of Science in September 1971.

Throughout its first session, the Faculty was accommodated in the premises of the Faculty of Pharmacy. The Division of Human Biology and Behaviour is now housed in Block D of the Biological Sciences and Pre-clinical buildings. The Divisions of Hospital Care, and Community and Nursing Care are temporarily housed in the premises of the University Health Centre which itself became the first of the Faculty's Community Health Centres for service, teaching and research in Primary Health Care.

ACADEMIC ORGANISATION

The Faculty is organised into functional Divisions, not traditional Departments so that integrated teaching shall be more easily achieved.

The following are the Divisions as currently approved by the Senate and Council :

1. Division of Human Biology and Behaviour
2. Division of Sciences of Pathology
3. Division of Community and Nursing Care
4. Division of Hospital Care.

Division of Human Biology and Behaviour.—The Division gives instructions and conducts research in the study of the normal structure and function of the human body including the procedures for investigating them and the parameters for recognising variations of normal.

The Division also instructs the students and conducts research on the nature of drugs and the effect of drugs on the body. In co-ordination with the Division of Hospital Care, it guides the students in the proper use of drugs and instructs them on the dangers of abuse of drugs. The Division also provides health care services in the form of consultation as regards the scientific basis of health care.

The Division is governed by a Divisional Committee under the direction of the Head of Division. This Committee consists of all the Faculty members and Associate Lecturers within the Division as well as representatives of students. It is the function of the Divisional Committee, amongst others, to :

- (1) formulate and periodically review the Divisional policies of instruction and service ;
- (2) examine and approve the instructional objectives and course contents prepared by the Course Curriculum Planning Committees within the Division, and ensure proper co-ordination and integration of all courses within the limits set by the Divisional policies ;

(3) receive and approve the evaluation reports of every student within the Division, and authorise feed back to the students through their supervisors ;

(4) report to the relevant Boards of Studies on Divisional policies, instructional objectives, course content, and student performance in all the courses undertaken in the Division.

DEGREES OFFERED

The Division of Human Biology and Behaviour offers no degree of its own at present. Staff of the Division contribute to the integrated programme of courses leading to the B.Sc. (Health Sciences) degree of the Faculty. The Division also runs service courses to the Faculty of Pharmacy in various aspects of Human Biology including Physiology and Pharmacology. Plans have also been completed for the Master's programme in Human Biology.
