Duration.—30 months.

Starting date.—As soon as possible.

Background.—The Project is intended to improve, expand and strengthen the extension, research, regulatory and control activities in crop protection of the Department of Plant Protection and Quarantine of the Agricultural Division in the Ministry of Agriculture, so that the quantities and quality of food and fibre available for internal use and export are increased by substantially reducing crop losses to pests, diseases and competitive weeds and greatly improving quality.

The immediate objectives of the Project are :

To assist in the development of a more balanced, effective and adequately supported Plant Protection Service ;

To demonstrate the benefits which accrue from adopting plant protection measures on various crops in a sustained manner by undertaking an operational research programme ;

to organize a plant pest and disease reporting system, and to establish economic thresholds for instituting a pest management programme ;

to establish and develop a training programme that would increase the output of qualified personnel for careers in crop protection ;

to assist in the establishment of monitoring facilities for pesticides and pesticide residue analyses ;

To assist in the preparation of quarantine legislation and establish an inspection and treatment system to prevent introduction of unwanted pests, diseases or weeds or their transfer to uninfected areas.

Duties.—Under the overall guidance of the Project Manager, and in direct co-operation with Counterpart Staff, the Phytopathologist will be responsible for :

(a) the investigation into the major diseases of fruit and cereal crops, in particular the assessment of their economic importance ;

(b) the development of, and advice on effective methods of control ;

(c) assistance in training National Counterpart Staff and field workers ;

(d) assistance in the organization of a Disease Reporting system ;

(e) advising on the preparation of Plant Quarantine Legislation ;

(f) preparing progress and technical reports as required ;

FOOD AND AGRICULTURE ORGANIZATION OF THE UNITED NATIONS

ANNOUNCEMENT OF FIELD POST VACANCY

Post title (Post No. Project).—PLANT PROTECTION EXPERT, Dryland Farming Research and Development, KEN 74/017.

Vacancy announcement.—No. AGO/AGP/804.

Date issued.—3rd July, 1979.

Closing date.—28th August, 1979.

Duty station.—Katumani, Kenya.

Duration.—51 months.

Starting date.—October, 1979.

Background.—The central theme in the Fourth Five Year Development Plan for Kenya (1979-83) is alleviation of poverty. The Government of Kenya aims to achieve this objective by ensuring that all people are given the opportunity for full social and economic development by providing access to resources and knowledge necessary to meet their basic needs such as adequate food, clean water, health, education and income generating opportunities. Kenya's most deprived human population resides in the arid and semi-arid lands which cover 80 per cent of its land area. The people of these lands are either pastoralists or subsistence farmers who, for lack of opportunity or incentive for social and technical advancement, are at present subjected to a life style that limits both their own development and that of the national economy. Scanty and erratic rainfall together with resource degradation have led to declining productivity. Recurrent crop failures lead to hunger and great suffering which can only be alleviated by costly famine relief operations. Agricultural research activities have in the past concentrated on the needs of the higher potential areas in Kenya. Research-tested improvements on traditional production systems in arid and semi-arid areas are few or lacking. The technology of the indigenous people in these arid and semi-arid areas is adapted to more extensive, mainly pastoral agricultural systems which are applicable under situations of low population pressures. Migrant populations from the crowded high potential areas bring with them farming technology which is inappropriate to marginal rainfall situations. As a result there are frequent crop failures and increasing resource degradation. The Government of Kenya recognises the serious situation in these areas and is therefore as a matter of urgency committed to a wide ranging programme of economic and social development of these areas. The development objectives of these areas are :—

(a) to evolve well developed and less risky farming systems that make semi-arid areas self-reliant for food requirements and attain higher and sustained total agricultural productivity while at the same time conserving and upgrading the status of the natural resources ;

(b) to integrate semi-arid lands more closely into the main stream of national economic activity ;

(c) to develop an agricultural support infrastructure including research, extension, co-operatives, input supplies, marketing, storage, credit services, feeder roads and water supplies.

Duties.—The principal responsibility of the pest control expert will be to determine the extent to which various types of pests limit crop production in marginal rainfall areas at various stages of production. The expert will be expected to make recommendations on appropriate ways of minimising crop losses due to pests, and to assist breeders and agronomists in selecting crop varieties with pest resistant characteristics.

Qualifications.—University degree in Plant Protection with post-graduate qualifications in entomology.

Experience.—Minimum 7 years' experience. The candidate should have had sound basic training in plant protection and should be conversant with a wide range of field crop pests including insects, nematodes, birds and rodents. At least 5 years' experience of independent research on the control of a major plant pest is required. Previous experience with pest problems of small subsistence farmers would be an advantage.

Language.—Full working knowledge of English.

Emoluments.—Salaries and benefits are liberal, commensurate with the responsibilities of the post and in line with the depth and breadth of training and experience.

Candidates may be requested to provide satisfactory evidence of the educational qualifications shown in their application. Appointments to vacant positions may depend upon the candidate selected providing such evidence for inclusion in his/her official personnel file.

All vacancy announcements invite both male and female candidates.
